ALAMEDA TERMINAL RAZED BY FIRE

PRICE RALLY AT CLOSE OF DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—(U.P.)—Ten billion dollars depreciation in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange and curb issues occurred today before banking support was able to stem the break in the last few minutes of trading.

Sales aggregating 23,506,330 shares on the two exchanges—16,410,030 on the stock exchange and 7,096,300 on the curb, both new records for all time.

The Dow, Jones & Company average of 30 representative stocks declined $30.57 to a new low for the year at $230.07. The railroad average declined $3.83 to $151.58. Today's decline brings the industrial average down exactly $151.10 from the high of $381.17 reached on September 3.

Tickers Behind

Tickers again lagged for behind the trading on both markets, and it was not until late in the evening that final quotations were reached.

The last quotation was printed at 5:31 p. m., two hours and 31 minutes after the closing gong had cleared the stock exchange floor.

Curb tickers caught up with the market at 6:18 p. m., the latest they have ever run.

Traders were forced to part with the vast holdings in the morning, due to inability to put up more margin. The initial sales ranged from 1,000 to 80,000 shares. On the curb Cities Service opened with 117,000 shares at 24 5-8 off 2 7-8. Losses on the big board ranged to 40 points, and later declines were extended to 50 points in some instances.

Large Blocks Sold

Blocks of 25,000, 30,000 and 50,000 shares were common at the outset. During the day heavy sales were recorded from time to time and the volume throughout the day surpassed all records.

The liquidation was the heaviest in history. It played chiefly in the pivotal shares, which showed the widest losses. General Motors had sales amounting to 971,300 shares; Radio Corporation, 382,200; Anaconda, 381,200; Commonwealth & Southern, 354,200; Inter-National Nickel, 319,700; U. S. Steel, 307,-

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—UP—Statements designed to encourage stock holders of the Pacific coast were issued by prominent financiers here today when Trans-America Corporation stock, last of the leading issues to break on the San Francisco Stock Exchange, dropped 30 points from 62 1-2.

Three separate statements were offered the first by A. P. Giannini, president of Trans-America corporation, the next by presidents of six San Francisco banks and the last by Sidney L. Schwartz, president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange.

"Clear Heads Needed"

"This community is to be congratulated on the character of its banking leadership," Schwartz said after the market had closed.

Just before TransAmerica corporation stock dropped 15 points, Giannini said: "This is a period that calls for clear heads and bold hearts."

"The fact that TransAmerica was the last stock to resist the present market decline affords a

P. G. E. WINS BATTLE WITH C. C. GAS CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—UP—Rumblings of the natural gas war between the Pacific Gas and Electric company and the Standard Oil company grew louder when the State Railroad Commission today ordered a reopening of hearings on the petition of the Coast Counties Gas and Electric company to distribute natural gas in San Benito county.

The commission ordered the reopening of the hearing on the application of the P. G and E.

Under the plan submitted to the commission several weeks ago the Coast Counties company stated it would purchase its natural gas from the P. G and E. The latter company at that time did not oppose the petition.

Subsequently, however the Standard Oil company acquired the Coast Counties Gas and Electric company and announced its entry into the natural gas field. The P. G. and E. immediately asked a new hearing, claiming it has new evidence which it had no previous opportunity to present.

The P. G. and E. announced at the same time it would begin within a few days to supply mixed natural and artificial gas to San Francisco households.

ATTACK ON BOY PROBED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29—With a gaping wound in his head, the unconscious body of Clifford Rowe, 10-year old San Francisco boy, was found in his back yard yesterday afternoon by the boy's father.

A length of iron pipe was found a few inches away from the body, cavered with blood.

According to Dr. D. D. Charmak, Central Emergency hospital physician, the boy's skull was fractured and little hope is held for his recovery.

The boy had been missing from his home for several hours, and his father was starting out to call him for dinner when the body was found.

Police were working on the theory that the boy had been attacked by a fiend, and hit with the piece of pipe which was found. The theory that he may have fallen off the fence was also offered, but the extent of the skull fracture was such that it could only have been caused by a violent blow, according to physicians.

The neighborhood was carefully combed by police working on the fiend theory.

The probability that the injury may have been sustained in a boyish quarrel with playmates was discredited due to the force necessary to inflict a wound of the proportions in the boy's head.

EIGHT LOST, 65 PERILED WHEN LAKE ST EAMER SINKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 29—(U.P.)—Towering gray waves engulfed their second heavily laden steamer within a week when the liner Wisconsin, with 65 aboard, foundered today 13 miles off the coast from Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Only unusual heroism of coast guardsmen prevented still another major disaster on storm wracked Lake Michigan.

Eight persons were believed to have perished. The others, swept from the decks by the rushing waves or dumped into the frothing surf when life boats were swamped, were saved by the heroic work of coast guardsmen and crews of other ships which answered the Wisconsin's frantic S. O. S. calls.

The Wisconsin, a 40-year old steamer plying between Chicago and Milwaukee, survided last week's storm only to go down in a lesser gale today. Seven days ago the car ferry Milwaukee sank with a loss of 53 lives.

Captain Lost

Capt. Hugo Morrison, one of the six still missing from the Wisconsin, apparently stood on the bridge and was carried to death with his ship in accord with traditions of the sea.

The Wisconsin steamed out of Chicago last night in a strong wind and soon was seized in the teeth of a raging gale. When she had wallowed through the crash-

'LOST' FLIERS COME OUT OF STORM

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. Oct. 29.—UP—The missing Western Air Express plane winged its way out of the snow-swept timberland near Trechado N. M., late today with its crew of three and two passengers unharmed.

Chief Pilot James Doles brought the liner over the airport here at 3:45 p. m and until he neared the hangar the ship remained unrecognized.

The passengers lauded his heroic work in putting the plane safely on the ground near Trechado late Monday when a bad snowstorm made further flying impossible.

"We certainly had a good pilot" said Dr. A. W. Ward, of San Francisco, nationally known dental authority as he stepped to the ground.

Plane Isolated

The liner had been isolated throughout the night because of inability of the stranded party to reach telephone or telegraph facilities.

At noon today the interrupted journey from Los Angeles to Albuquerque was resumed. A light snow was falling in this vicinity as the big ship hove into sight. Ground crews and Western Air Express officials were amazed to see the plane come into port unattended.

Practically all of the planes engaged in the search for the overdue plane were grounded at points in Arizona and New Mexico due to poor visibility and snowstorms.

"Storm Terrible"

"The storm was terrible," Doles said. "There was nothing else we could do except make a forced landing.'

He said he found a small clearing in the timbered country and succeeded in bringing his tri motored cabin ship down safely. Then the party explored the nearby country and found a small cabin in which all five remained overnight.

Falling snow led them to believe for a time that it would be impossible to take off again.

"The snow," Dr. Ward said, "was knee deep where we landed but there was lots of timber and many hills with only a small place for us to land."

Night In Cabin

The party returned to the ship today after their night in the cabin. They met "Uncle Gus" a trapper, who inspected the airplane in amazement and then

Water Damage Suit Increased To $50,000

MARTINEZ Oct. 29.—In a second amended complaint filed here today, Manuel Aives and Antonio Lemos asked $50,000 damages against the East Bay Municipal Utility District.

The suit is now being tried in the court of Judge A. B. McKenzie, the first complaint of the plaintiffs asking for $35,800 damages for alleged diminuation of their water suppy.

In the complaint filed today $25,000 is asked for loss of water, caused when a tunnel of the district is alleged to have undermined one of their wells. The other $25,000 is asked for damages caused to the plaintiffs dairy business, which they claim they can not run without the water supplied by the well.

The amended complaint sets forth that the amount of water per hour formerly received from the well, was 600 gallons in place of the 1,000 gallons previously stated.

T. M. Carlson and A. F. Bray are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Hangar Demolished By Eastbay Storm

OAKLAND, Oct. 29—A sudden renewal of the norther which has swept California for the past 24 hours, early this morning ripped the main hangar at the San Leandro airport from its foundations, overturned it, lashed it to bits, and wrecked two airplanes housed in the hangar.

According to reports from the field, which were scarce owing to the wreckage of telephone and telegraph wires, nothing was left of the hangar but scattered pieces of corrugated iron sheeting and timber.

It was reported that so great was the force of the wind, that one section of the hangar, weighing several tons, was lifted bodily over a four foot fence and deposited in an adjacent truck garden.

The night watchman at the airport was there alone about two o'clock this morning when the gale started to loosen the foundations of the hangar.

Telephone wires were down, and he had to run a half mile to summon F. S. Spackman, owner of the airport, and W. S. McDonald, field manager, who helped him save two other planes.

Chamber To Elect Seven Directors

Seven directors of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, will be chosen at the forth coming annual meeting, according to announcement yesterday.

The annual membership meeting, which takes the form of a dinner at the Hotel Carquinez, is to be held this year on Nov. 20. Seven directors' terms are expiring and there must be at least twice this number of nominees.

Those whose terms are expiring at the end of this year are: E. B. Bull, T. H. DeLap, M. A. Hays, W. T Helms, Joseph F. Brooks, O. R. Ludewig and J. A McVittie.

Following the annual meeting and nomiuations, ballots are sent by mail to the entire membership and these are counted at the election on Dec. 18. The directors thus chosen take their seats at the first meeting of the board after Jan. 1, and at this meeting the board organizes for the ensuing year and elects a president.

None of the incumbent directors has indicated whether or not he will be a candidate for re-election.

It is understood that the industrial program of the chamber will be aggressively pushed, with the object of bringing in many new concerns in 1930. Settlement of the title matter on the inner harbor, and the location of the Filice and Perrelli cannery, development of the past months, have paved the way, it is be-lived. for great developments in the near future.

HEAVY LOSS FEARED IN BLAZE

ALAMEDA, Oct. 30—Fire of undetermined origin was raging under the Encinal terminal at the foot of J street at an early hour this morning while the combined fire departments of San Francisco and Alameda were fighting the blaze, assisted by three fire boats.

Concrete floors and piling prevented the fire from spreading underneath the entire million dollar wharf structure which is filled with valuable cargo.

When the fire was brought under partial control this morning it had eaten its way under the wharf for a distance of approx mately 700 feet.

Flames Hidden

Firemen were unable to reac the flames from the land side an were forced to do all their fighting from the fire boats. A fi boat from the San Francisco department was summoned as wel as the tug Phoenix of the Alask Packing corporation and the bi Southern Pacific tug Ajax. A three of these fire boats wer throwing steady streams of wat into the burning mass. Fire fighting was greatly handicapped b the dense smoke, terrific heat an gasses.

The flames started under the northeast corner of the whar and, fanned by a stiff breeze, at their way west and south throug the creosoted piling and flooring.

Steamers Cut Loose

The K. I Lukenback and Normandie, two vessels tied up at the pier were forced to cut loose and anchored out in the bay shortly after the flames started.

At far as could be learned at an early hour this morning, Patrolman Fred Wescher was the only man to be injured. He walked off the pier into the bay in the dense smoke. He was rescued by several youths in a row boat.

Officials at the fire were unable to estimate the loss, and said that an accurate check could not be made until after daylight. The loss, however, is feared to be heavy, as it will be necessary to wreck the entire wharf over the fire damaged piling and foundation.

Although firemen said the flames were under control and would not spread any further into the pier, it was reported that it would be several hours before the flames could be put out completely.

FIRE DAMAGES FERRY SLIP

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Fire, believed to have been started by a cigarette, suddenly flared up this noon between ferry slips 5 and 6, demoralizing water traffic and forcing the Southern Pacific ferryboat Piedmont to back out on the bay to escape the flames.

Ferryboats arriving from Eastbay, were forced to remain out on the bay 100 yards from the slips, due to the dense clouds of smoke and the flames fanned by the wind.

The fire was extinguished after a battle of 30 minutes by the fireboats Denis Sullivan and David Scannell.

Damage from the blaze was estimated at $2500.

Traffic Blocked By Peat Flames

MARTINEZ, Oct. 29—Traffic between Avon and Bay Point was blocked tonight as a gang of workmen battled a peat fire that threatened to undermine the highway.

The blaze started early yesterday afternoon, in some unknown manner. A crew from the county highway department was dispatched to the scene.

Officials expressed belief last night that the blaze would be extinguished before it damaged the highway.

"The School For Wives"—And For Husbands

ONCE upon a time there was a girl who met—she admitted it herself—the man of her soul's choice—

His name was Robert, and she knew that henceforth she could belong only to him.

She was convinced that her whole life ought to be devoted
To helping him to accomplish his glorious destiny.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

"In comparison with him," she rhapsodized, "there is no one who knows the meaning of real dignity.
"He does not say or do anything like ordinary people,
"And yet there is nothing affected or pretentious about him.
"I have been thinking for a long time what the best word would be "To describe his appearance, his dress, his talk, his behavior.
"The word 'distinguished' is the one I come back to,
"And I wish the word had never been used for anyone else.
"He owes the extraordinary distinction of his manners and indeed, of his whole personality, to himself alone.
"The only thing I want is Robert's approval,
"I don't care at all about pleasing other people—
"Or else only for his sake and because I see what pleasure it gives him.
"When I am in company, I always seem to myself the most ridiculous person there.
"I know I am neither particularly pretty nor particularly witty.
"And I can't understand what Robert saw in me to fall in love with.
"All his ideas are generous and noble.
"He is exceedingly pious by nature.
"Whatever he undertakes, I am certain he will succeed.
"As soon as he lets himself go, his whole person becomes animated,
"And he says such wonderful things that I want to write them down at once.
"And then he is so witty too and funny.
"When one hears Robert talk, one can't help longing for other people to hear him too.
"He knows all sorts of celebrated people and has acquaintances in every kind of set.
"As he only asks for things that are right, he easily gets everything he wants.
"He likes to be there when I try my dresses on,
"Because his taste is marvelous, and a discussion with the dressmakers amuses him.
"As if I could ever have any other pleasure or tastes than Robert's!
"What pleases me most, even about the furniture for my own sitting-room,
"Is that he should choose it.
"His mind is never unemployed.
"He is always learning and manages to find profit in everything.
"It makes me rather sad to feel that he has so little need of my help
"In order to succeed in anything he attempts.
"But he is very kind and pretends he cannot get on without me,
"And the thought is so sweet that I indulge in it without believing it.
"Perhaps, by dint of love, I shall succeed in raising myself to his level.
"I hope so with all my heart and continually strive to.
"He helps me too with such patience.
"The care and attention he lavishes upon me do not interfere with his other activities, I am thankful to say.
"I should love him less if I were to be the only object of his life.
"I am here to help him and not to distract him from his career.
"It is beyond me—higher than me that he must look."
Oh, yes, there was a girl just engaged who talked like that.
You'll find her talking so in a clever little book, André Gide's "The School for Wives."
And the main idea and even the language is not so different
From the blind, rapturous hero-worship of newly engaged girls all over America.
Well, the French girl, of whom M. Gide tells us, marries her Robert,
And, twenty years later, she is speaking of him in this fashion:
"The only way by which I can escape hating him
"Is never to see him any more.
"Oh! above all, never to hear him talk any more.
"He has a way of talking of duty which is enough to make one take a loathing to all 'duties,'
"A way of making use of religion which casts suspicion on all religion,
"And of playing on noble sentiments so as eternally to disgust one with them.
"The sound of his own voice moves him to tears,
"As for me, alas! all I can see in it is play-acting."
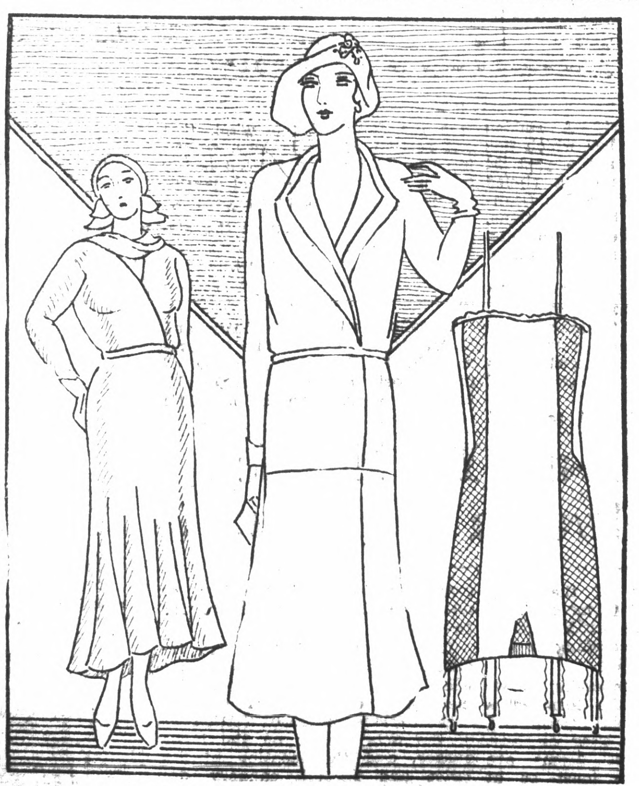
To Robert himself, she finally explodes as follows:
"The man I passionately loved was different
"From the man I have slowly discovered you to be.
"I have gradually discovered that you are very different
"From what I thought you were at first—from the man I once loved."
But, in a moment of introspective candor, she says to herself:
"How is it that I find Robert's faults so intolerable?
"Is it because the very thing that exasperates me to-day
"Is just the very thing I formerly found so beguiling,
"The very thing that charmed me and that seemed worthy of the highest praise?
"Oh! I must needs admit it; it is not he who has changed;
"It is I; the judgments that I form to-day are different."
There is indicated one of the reasons why marriage is not—as Stevenson said—a bed of roses:
It is, indeed, the school for wives—
Where they learn what is more or less the truth, the reality, about the men whom they have idealized before marriage—
Although this idealization is voluntary, and usually not induced by conscious male hypocrisy.
Besides, let the wife who thinks that she must be forever wretched
Because her husband is a human man, not the young god she imagined him—
Let her remember that, if marriage is the school for wives,
Marriage is also the school for HUSBANDS!
A man, newly engaged, often idealizes his sweetheart
At least as much as she idealizes him.

FOLLIES OF FASHION

Extreme Lines Are Not For the Older Woman

By Marguerite Barnes



THE tall, rather heavily built woman may feel that the new fashions are not becoming to her, but by choosing carefully, she will find that it is possible for her to be both suitably and smartly dressed. Her first interest must be a corset. The one illustrated, which is high, accents the curve of the waist and is lightly boned, is a good type for her. High lustred materials like satin or metal cloth are an unwise choice as they tend to accent her too generous curves. The frock at the left, of satin, is too extreme, the normal waistline too definitely outlined for such a figure. The dress at the right is more suitable, for although it has a high belt it is worn more loosely and the line of the blouse is carried down by the line at the hips. The collar and vertical line to the hem offset any width gained by the higher waistline. The larger hat is better for her, also.

The Farmer's Advice

'By Alfalfa Smith

HAVE you ever noticed that success in this life is in proportion to your resistance to obstacles?

Have you ever noticed how many people go along easily until some emergency comes up and then they crash under its weight?

This little talk, if you read it often enough, is calculated to put a little spunk into you, for you MUST meet opposition in climbing life's hill.

When something comes up to test your ability, go at it with a will and remember that you are standing an examination and that those who have reached the top had no easy climb.

Don't worry about difficulties—they are all a part of the day's work.

Carry on—CARRY ON!

The Fabric Hat

DIVERSITY of shape has brought to view a diversity of medium in autumn hats. Versatile Agnes of Paris more than a year ago was the first designer to stimulate interest in anything but felt and to her belongs the honor of having injected wider variety into millinery. Her ever-novel ideas constantly enliven the mode with fabrics, tweeds and satin, the latter for formal wear.

Linoleums as Floor Coverings

NOW that there is a trend toward entire floor coverings housewives are turning their attention to linoleums for these seem to fill the wants not only in the kitchen and bath room but throughout the house in all the service rooms for it is easily cleaned and both looks and wears well. It makes a warm floor covering and is comfortable to walk or stand on. These several good qualities recommend it to the housekeeper.

In bedrooms and rooms where an unobtrusive effect is desired there are plain linoleums, some in two tones of the same color. When the bright colored scatter rugs are placed the result is a charming floor effect. Those plain linoleums come in the dull blue and rose as well as the browns, grays and greens. A two-tone gray linoleum with those pretty rugs in which rose predominates is very effective.

The inlaid linoleums can be used as a border for the floor where a large centre rug is used. If perfectly laid it will be an excellent imitation of a hardwood inlaid floor.

If Lentils Are on the Menu

LENTILS belong to the class of legumes but are not so familiar to housekeepers as are the dried peas and beans. Like the peas and beans they are rich in protein and should find a place in family menus often, especially during the cold weather.

As a soup lentils are delicious when boiled with a hambone. They are good as a stew when frankfurters are cut into pieces and boiled in the stew about fifteen minutes before serving. When eaten with rye bread this makes a substantial meal.

Lentils may be boiled and served with butter or boiled with bacon. They are tasty when baked, and curried lentils with rice make a satisfying luncheon dish. Lentil pancakes are good. A lentil loaf served with tomato sauce is appetizing.

Combined with dried beans or with cooked rice they can be served as croquettes. Mixed with peanuts and seasoning they may be served as mock veal cutlets, and if a brown sauce is added and mashed potatoes are included in the menu it will be a nutritious main dinner course.

New Inventions

An attachment for carpenters' rules that can be set at any predetermined position to indicate the level of a piece of work has been patented by a Connecticut inventor.

A commodious metal body that can be attached to almost any automobile chassis has been designed for tourists who camp out while on their journeys.

Driven by compressed air, a hand-operated tool has been invented for smoothing concrete surfaces preparatory to painting them.

Seat cushions provided for new long distance passenger airplanes designed in England can be worn as life-preservers in case of forced descent on water.

A pneumatic sole for walking shoes that is attached and then inflated to hold it in place has been invented by a Pennsylvanian.

In a locomotive with which an English railway is experimenting steam is used for starting, overloads and auxiliary purposes while an internal combustion engine does the main work.

Germans claim to have perfected a method for waterproofing concrete surfaces by spraying them with molten metals.

A Cuban has invented a device that enables a person ignorant of telegraphy to send signals of distress by radio from a ship or airplane, giving its code letters and position.

A frame to hold greenhouse panels that a New Jersey inventor has patented includes a gutter to collect the water condensing on the under side of the glass.

A woman is the inventor of an umbrella opened and closed by pulling a cord and which has interchangeable covers.

Renewable soft noses feature a new hammer intended to prevent injury to machinery on which it is used.

President's Trip to Middle West Next Week to Reveal How People Take His Administration

WASHINGTON, D. C.

President Hoover's trip to the Middle West next week will be his first contact with the country for an estimate of how the people take to his Administration.

He has been away from Washington but twice. He went to New York for the Associated Press lunch early in his term and to Philadelphia for a baseball game. If his reception in Detroit, Cincinnati and Louisville and en route is as cordial as capital observers believe it will be, it is not unlikely Mr. Hoover will do more traveling soon.

Every report reaching the White House reassures the President that he is "sitting on top of the world."

The editorial reaction to his conversations with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain has been little else than flattering.

His press on the flexible tariff plea, which the Senate turned down, is described as having given him all the better of it.

Through a personal appearance in three representative cities he may hope to obtain some idea of his personal popularity with the masses of the people. There will be street parades in the three towns. There seems to be not the slightest room for doubt that big crowds and real cordiality will greet him in all of them.

The indications have been that the President did not propose extended discussion of the issues which have developed in Washington since March 4, those on which he has taken a stand or enunciated a policy. The presumption has been he would talk about electricity at the Detroit show in honor of Thomas A. Edison and on inland waterways at Louisville, where he will stand on a river boat and talk to a crowd massed on the sloping cobblestone levee.

EXHIBITS GOOD SHOWMANSHIP

George Akerson's flair for good showmanship stands out in the program for the five-day trip away from Washington, beginning Sunday afternoon. Arrangements have been perfected locally in Detroit, Cincinnati and Louisville for the buildings to be decorated. A maximum of advance publicity has flowed in behalf of the best local efforts for a reception of the President and his party.

Nothing short of the worst sort of weather—in violation of the "Hoover luck"—could be expected to prevent enormous, cheering throngs greeting the President wherever he appears. Such demonstrations, reported in the newspapers of the country, would be expected to enhance Mr. Hoover's prestige at the moment he is taking a trimming in the tariff fight and encourage the idea that the country esteems him more highly than it does the Senate insurgents.

In attempting the test of Hoover popularity, the psychology is all on the side of the President. The American people turn out for a visitor from the White House. A lot of it is inspired by curiosity. Some of it traces to respect for the office. There is an undoubted admiration for the man who holds the Nation's highest elective office.

WANTS SHEARER FOR NEWS

Carlisle Bargeron, the flip philosopher of the Washington Post, has given the best estimate of the dulness of the widely press-agented Senate lobby inquiry. The committee has left an impression it was groping for "leads," shooting at the moon for a chance to keep the investigation on the front pages. The ingenuity of reporters has been taxed to pep up the news accounts of the proceedings.

At Wednesday's session, three Senators asked questions for two and a half hours without eliciting one answer on which a newsy lead might be written. Senator Blaine of Wisconsin put into the record a large number of press releases sent out by the United States Beet Sugar Association, after Harry A. Austin, secretary-treasurer of the organization, had filed all of them an hour before.

Senator Walsh of Montana seemed to attach greater importance to the identity of newspapers to which Austin had sent his publicity matter. He kept harping on the subject. The simplest thing in the world would have been to have handed Senator Walsh a copy of the Press Gallery list in the Congressional Record with the statement that any one having any propaganda to distribute in Washington sends his mimeographed material to add to the stack every Washington newspaper man faces daily.

The lobby inquiry was such a disappointment there was general agreement that it was a flop.

The bells rang in the committee room. A roll call was being taken in the Senate on some amendment to the Tariff Bill. The lobby committee held a whispered conference and decided on a recess so the four Senators could be recorded on the tariff division

The dulness and disappointment of the lobby probe led Bargeron to suggest:

"When the committee returns all of us should start drumming on the tables like they do at ball games and chant: 'We want Shearer! We want Shearer!' He makes news."

Shearer did make news. He provided a headline every five minutes.

NONE ACCEPTED BLINDLY

A current estimate of the three White House secretaries sets forth that President Hoover showed excellent judgment in his choice of a triology of assistants, having picked, according to the article, a good Congressman, a good newspaper man and a good detective.

White House gossip has been fled for weeks with stuff about how Lawrence Richey, one of the Hoover secretaries, has conducted a system of espionage worthy of the French Secret Police or Potsdam at its best. Such stories are a reflection on the executive talents of a man whose value and loyalty to Mr. Hoover ought to be beyond question. Mr. Richey has rendered invaluable services to Mr. Hoover in ways the public knows not and there is not much use going into them.

The Senate cloakrooms are hearing a story which transfers from his own shoulders the responsibility for Mr. Richey's detective activities.

It is to the effect that a Senator went down to the White House to recommend a constituent for a place on one of the numerous Hoover boards and commissions. The President, having said he did not know the man, but was quite willing to consider him for the appointment, terminated the interview with the statement:

"I'll have Mr. Richey look into his record."

The Senator is telling it in the cloakrooms as a reflection on White House methods. He says it shows Secretary Richey is head of the Hoover "detective staff."

A good answer to such a complaint might be that it was wiser to learn about men before they are given important Federal posts instead of after.

LEATHER in jewelry, which made its first appearance this past spring, reappears in a number of very attractive pieces. Tiny, braided leather thongs combined with gold or composition like shell are uniquely designed, some with knots, bows and dangling ends, others in two-strand effects.

Establishing Identity

A MIDDLE-AGED MAN was apprehended on a minor offense. He lied to the court. When asked if he had ever been convicted of crime he answered that he had not been.

DOROTHY FROOKS

One of the most interesting methods of detecting criminals is what is known as the "Rogues Gallery." It revealed that this man had been sentenced twice before the Baumes law became effective. He gave his name, address, age. He was a stranger in town. That made no difference so far as his record was concerned.

The system of detecting criminals is operated by coordination and cooperation. Every police department in the United States, and in fact the entire civilized world, is using the same method and system.

The man in court gave a wrong name, an address that was fictitious and an age that was not true. By our detective methods it did not take more than five minutes to get the man located as far as his criminal past was concerned.

The Rogues Gallery is a filing system. Each file contains two photographs of each criminal. One is a full face and the other is a profile. With these photographs, there is the name, and any and all aliases used, the height, weight, the color of the eyes, any special marks for identification, and the charge. These files are in triplicate. The one means of identification are the photographs. The second are the specifications and the third means are the types of crimes.

It appears that criminals carry on in the similar type of crime. If his right name is not known the detection system does not require it. It would take less time to hunt up a record if the name is known; if it is not known, the height of the man, the color of his eyes, would be sufficient to concentrate the efforts of the investigators on one file. Every fraction of an inch in height is classified. This makes it easier to locate a man's record. A man may change his name, address, even grow stout or thin, but can not change the color of his eyes. His height remains about the same. Finger prints never lead the investigator astray. After an identification is made there is a consultation. Usually there are detectives that are known to have "eagle eyes." Once they see a criminal they never forget him. It is yet to be known that a criminal who assumed innocence as far as his identity was concerned was not spotted. All the aliases in the world can not defeat the system of the Police Department. The photographic file is called the gallery.

A criminal from another State or country can find no refuge. His record and description and fingerprints are available anywhere. Criminals themselves prefer the department to identify them quickly. Where they try to evade recognition the penalty is more severe.

THE LOWDOWN ON GRIDIRON PFD.

A FOOTBALL coach explains his team's defeat in a market letter to the alumni:

"Dear Alumnus: Although Siwash varsity was 89 points off in Saturday's game with Bohunk College, we have never been in a more advantageous position than now.

"I attribute our temporary setback to a necessary deflation of the football. You are well aware that constantly increasing popularity of the gridiron game in recent years has caused an inflation of the pigskin, making it harder to catch a punt. This inflation reached the breaking point when Gummox, our 290-pound centre, fell on the ball, deflating it completely.

"Late in the last period, with the score 76 to 0 against us, I admit we were on our own 5-yard line, but our technical position was strong. This was because the quarterback had a stop-loss order to make a safety rather than give Bohunk posession of the ball.

"You cannot tell much about a football team these days by looking it up in Moody's Manual or Spalding's Guide. You can read other college scores, such as Quince beating Carnegie Aggies, 40 to 7, or Minnesconsin trimming Notre Purdue, 30 to 0, but these quoted values do not mean a thing among the blue chip teams.

"An index of twenty leading varsity squads shows a drop of 27.9 points, compared with scores of the corresponding period last autumn. When these other teams can take a socking like that, you can hardly blame Siwash for dropping an 89 to 0 game now and then.

"I attribute this temporary setback to a falling off in car loadings last week. When the student body set out for the Siwash-Bohunk game, they only loaded three special cars and twenty-seven rumble seats. Contrast this figure with a year ago, when the Siwash cheering section filled seven special cars, five motor buses and forty-six coupes.

"Unfilled orders also contributed to our defeat. Before the team went on the gridiron against Bohunk I ordered Quarterback Murphy to score a touchdown every five minutes. The fact that these orders were not filled is a barometer pointing to why we lost.

"At the end of the third quarter I had expected dividends of at least 50 points. Instead of this at the end of the third quarter our board of strategy passed and a Bohunk defense man intercepted it. You can't win games that way.

"However, the future looks very bright, now that we have had our period of readjustment. Our future commitments include Georgia Tech, Notre Dame, Vanderbilt, West Point, Nebraska and Stanford on their home grounds, but Charles M. Schwab states Bethlehem Steel is working day and night and you can be assured that many a piece of steel will find its way into our bandages, knee pads and football cleats.

"Our squad is now in a healthy position, consuming a bushel of October wheat for breakfast each morning. I understand the boll weevil has broken out in the South, which will play havoc with Georgia Tech's and Vanderbilt's jerseys and make them easier for us.

"In addition to these splendid prospects, I am demanding a wider margin of victory in all future games. I predict that Siwash's eleven has reached its year's low in that 89 to 0 game with Bohunk and we are now on an upward trend. Our November games ought to make a sure profit for any speculator. He should be able to get $75 a pair for tickets on the 40-yard line.

"Yours faithfully, JOE GRIMBLE,
"Head Coach and Resident Partner."

Appraisals By Realtors Given U. S. Approval

Appraisals by local real estate boards are recognized as official by federal, state, county and city governments, according to E. P. Huston, Sacramento, regional vice president of the California Real Estate association.

The appraisal division of the State association has perfected a uniform standard of appraisals and has adopted a standard form for statewide use, as well as an educational course in appraising.

"When an application for appraisal is made in Sacramento" said Huston, "the board appoints an appraisal committee of Realtors who are experts in the particular type of property to be studied. These experts make a detailed investigation, considering the value of the property at a given time under existing conditions and trends and influences based on their own intimate knowledge of properties.

"Thus such an appraisal becomes a scientific study and the determinations represent an unbiased opinion of experts. These appraisers receive no compensation, as all fees go to the board and are used for studies and investigations to maintain the highest standards of practice, service and ethics in the real estate business.

"Appraisals are made to determine a security for a loan, the purchase or sale price, the amount of insurance to be carried or to be paid in case of loss, and for taxation, condemnation and accounting purposes."

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, [illegible] works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance.

Gales To Honor Great War Hero

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE, Oct. 29.—Members of the Vallejo unit of the Saint Mary's Alumni association decided at their [illegible] meeting to perpetuate the memory of a former classmate, [illegible] Fleming, by erecting a monument of some sort on the new St. Mary's campus.

Fleming, a native of Vallejo, was killed in action during the World war. His classmate, Thomas J. The Northbay unit of the Alumni association, composed of graduates from Vallejo, Napa and the northbay counties voted a subscription drive [illegible] to pay for the new memorial, which will be erected soon.

Lenore Ulric Pleases In New Talkie

Lenore Ulric, the celebrated Belasco star who makes her talkie debut in "Frozen Justice," which is playing at the Fox-California theater now, scores an emphatic hit. She plays a half-caste Alaskan belle, an unfaithful wife, an exotic voluptuous beauty with a tempestuous fire-and-ice nature. This role which most actresses would find difficult to portray proves a very natural and easy one for the Belasco star.

Directed by Allan Dawn, "Frozen Justice" is a skillfully contrived melodrama amid the roaring cafes and dance halls of the Yukon when the great gold rush was in full swing. Bizarre advanturers who came to it from all corners of the globe also supply color to this Fox Movietone picture.

As "Talu Little Star of the North" so dubbed by the same proprietor, Miss Ulric brings not only a wealth of dramatic talent to the screen but proves herself to possess a very charming lyrical voice with her song: "The Right Kind of Man"

Louis Wolheim portrays a hard-boiled bruiser with the proverbial heart of gold; Robert Frazer portrays her chieftain husband; and Ullrich Haupt is the heavy. The story is one of betrayal and revenge and the study of the conflicting desires and impulses in a woman of mixed blood heritage.

The Nome sequences of "Frozen Justice" are studded with comedy and pathos and sweep the action into a climax of great intensity. Owen Davis wrote the dialog. A host of celebrated players also have important parts; El Brendel, Tom Patricola, Laska Winter, Alice Lake, Gertrude Astor, Warren Hymer and George McFarlane, the baritone.

Talking comedy—"Zip, Boom, Bang" and Fox News are also on the bill.

St. Mary's To View French Motion Picture

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, Oct. 29.—The French photoplay "The Passion of Joan of Arc" by Carl Dreyer, produced by member of the Comedie Francaise will be shown at St. Mary's college on the evening of Nov. [illegible].

Considered by critics to be the best film ever produced in France and rated by the National Board of Review as one of the four best pictures of all time, the play is said to be a decided contrast in artistic and production technique to American works of similar scope.

The leading part, Joan of Arc, is taken by Maria Falconetti, star of the French Comedy. She is supported by M. Sylvan, also a noted actor in the French Comedy. The film met with enormous success in Europe and received flattering reviews from eastern critics, where it was hailed as one of the most magnificent achievements of twentieth century art.

Literary societies, art clubs and all the various groups on the campus have planned to attend and provisions have been made to accommodate a large crowd. The new film is the third feature of a program of cultural events being sponsored at St Mary's under the direction of Brother Leo.

KFWM Ready To Operate Here By November 9

Radio station KFWM has shut down at its Oakland plant and the work of dismantling this plant has started, according to announcement yesterday by W. L. Gleson, who has been appointed general manager of the station.

The dismantling of the old plant is being carried on in conjunction with the construction of the new one at East Shore Park. Richmond and much of the old material will go into the new plant, according to Gleeson. Fresh equipment will be added where needed, so that the Richmond broadcast plant will be the last word in radio transmission, Gleeson declared.

Work at the Richmond plant is progressing satisfactorily, according to C. R. Welch, president of the broadcasting concern, who is on the ground giving the construction work his personal super vision. The building which is to house the generators and other equipment and provide living quarters for the operators is nearing completion. The foundations have been completed for the 125-foot towers, and the finishing of these towers with the old steel from Oakland will go rapidly forward, it was said.

Welch said there is no doubt but that KFWM will be able to go on the air from Richmond at midnight Nov. 9, putting on a special program that is expected to reach listeners in Australia. The plans for the welcoming dinner to the station officials are in charge of M. A. Hays of the chamber of commerce and it now seems likely that this function will be held on the evening of Nov. 16, Hays announced.

Welch made public news of the appointment of Gleeson as the new station manager. In this capacity Gleeson will have complete charge of the station's affairs. He said negotiations are progressing for a satisfactory studio in Richmond, and if these were successful there is a possibility that Richmond might be chosen for the main broadcast headquarters instead of Oakland or San Francisco.

9,932,237·57 Collected In Gasoline Tax

California's supremacy as a mecca for summer tourists is now established beyond question. So asserted the State Board of Equalization upon completion today of gasoline tax assessments aggregating $9,932,237.57 for the months of July, August and September.

Motor vehicle fuel sales used at the basis of these taxes were 66.71 per cent more than the distributions for the summer of 1924, the first complete year when the law was in effect, and exceeded the sales for the third quarter of 1928 by 16.15 per cent. In the entire history of gasoline taxes in California, no such percentage of gain has been shown for the sales during the third quarter of a year over those for the same period of the previous year. The nearest approach was in the summer of 1927 when distributions were 11.8 per cent greater than the corresponding figures for 1926.

The gallonage assessed to the 59 distributors reporting for the third quarter of this year is 334,418,767.4, on which the tax at three cents per gallon has been calculated after allowance for 1 per cent for shrinkage as required by law. Estimating the distributions for the last three months of 1929 on the basis of an 8.5 per cent increase over the final quarter of 1928, the equalization board predicts that 1,230,192,000 gallons of gasoline will be taxed this year. This percentage of increase has been fixed through averaging the gains shown during the fourth quarters for the past three years.

On this basis the board forecasts the total tax for 1929 at $36,536,000, all of which will be available for highway purposes, with the exception of refunds for non-highway uses. These, however, are not expected to reduce the net gasoline taxes below $34,000,000.

Twenty-six companies reported motor vehicle fuel distributions of one million gallons or more for the third quarter of this year, and were assessed by the Equalization Board for the following gallonage:

Menjou Aided By Composer In New Film

Victor Schertzinger acted as technical expert as well as director for Adolphe Menjou's first all-talking picture "Fashions in Love" which will show at the Fox-California theater tomorrow only. Menjou, as the star, is presented as a world-famous pianist. Although Menjou can play the piano, he has never played on the concert stage and, in this role, Schertzinger brought his unique experience to the actor's aid.

During several years, Schertzinger was concert soloist with Sousa's band on European tours. His interest in the theater, always acute, lead him to accept the directorship of the orchestra for the Broadway stage offering, "The Wizard of Oz." Following the New York run of the show, he went on tour with it, arrived in Los Angeles and finally induced Thomas H. Ince to experiment with specially arranged musical scores for motion pictures. He was successful in this undertaking and was soon directing pictures.

Schertzinger has both song and picture hits to his credit. Among the former is the famous love song "Marcheta" and the latter include "Redskin" "The Wheel of Life" "Forgotten Faces" and others. For "Fashions in Love" his third all-talking picture, hew rote two song hits 'Delphine,' which Menjou sings in the picture, and 'I Still Believe in You' sung by Miss Fay Compton, the well-known English actress.

On this bill is a talking comedy, "Syncopated Trial" and a Sound Review.

Failure of your car to start may often be remedied by removal of the distributor cap and inspection of the "points." An ordinary nail file will usually smooth up the points enough to permit the car to be started and driven to the nearest service station.

Speakers Named For Graduation At High School

According to an announcement yesterday by B. X. Tucker, principal of the Richmond Union high school, student speakers for the graduation exercises have been selected. Warren Brown will represent the boys, and Meredith Morgan is the speaker selected from the girls.

The two pupils were selected from among the 30 members of the graduating class who had grades of two or better. Elimination contests were held by the eligible pupils, and Brown and Miss Morgan won the finals.

The two speakers will replace the usual commencement orator. The exercises will include presentation of the diplomas and musical selections by the senior class chorus and by the high school orchestra.

Both Miss Morgan, and Brown have been prominent in student activities, Miss Morgan being student judge and Brown athletic manager of the student organization this year.

According to the announcement of Tucker, 85 pupils will be graduated.

Essay Contest Announced By Realtor Board

For the purpose of stimulating interest in and encouraging knowledge of their home community plans have been outlined by the Burbank Realty Board for the holding of an essay contest during the winter months open to high school students of the city on the subject of "My Home Town." The San Francisco Real Estate Board has an "Own Your Home" contest by the public schools.

Liberal prizes have been provided for the winners of the contest through the cooperation of the Burbank chamber of commerce. The project also has the support of the city's school authorities and the newspapers.

The plan had its inception with Frank M. Wellington, chairman of the board's publicity committee. In his research he uncovered a great many important facts that were new to him. It occurred to him that probably there were many residents who like himself were not familiar with many pertinent facts about their city, but would be vitally interested in knowing them.

Oakland Hotel Hit By Flames

OAKLAND, Oct. 29.—Fire which broke out shortly after three o'clock this morning in the Hotel Vernon, Eleventh and Franklin streets, forced nearly a score of men and women, clad only in their night attire to be rescued in a spectacular manner by firemen who carried them down ladders to safety.

The fire which is believed to have started in the bottom of the linen shoot, presumably from a cigaret butt, caused damage estimated at $3000.

Most of the guests were led to safety down smoke filled halls by the firemen, but more than a dozen were carried down ladders to the ground. In addition, several tenants were taken from windows on the fifth floor of the hotel.

Due to the smoke which filled the halls and rooms of the establishment guests of the hotel were taken to other downtown hotels for the remainder of the night.

fair appraisal of its investment value but with the change in the general trend it should not be surprising that TransAmerica eventually follows the other leading stocks of the world.

Feel Confident

"Selling brought about to protect the market account and to provide funds for the purchase of securities which have declined so drastically in the present market crisis is the basis for the decline in our stock. We are facing the situation with confidence and feel sure that our stockholders will do the same.

"It must be borne in mind that TransAmerica primarily is a bank holding company and that the real value of its holdings has not been affected."

Presidents of the Bank of California, Anglo & London Paris National bank, Wells Fargo, Crocker American Trust and Bank of Italy emphasized that business and industry are sound and generally prosperous on the Pacific coast and elsewhere throughout the country.

Held Correction

"It is desirable and it is recommended that the community and the banks themselves should regard values of securities, rather than immediate quotations of a stock market that indicates hysteria rather than poor judgment" the ysaid. "The movement going on on the Stock Exchanges is evidently a correction of the technical condition brought about by overspeculation."

Schwartz declared "hysterical destruction of values holds no place in the minds of the San Francisco clearing house bankers."

"They are close to the picture and in a better position than anyone to know the real values that lie behind the giant corporations of the Pacific coast," the Stock Exchange leader said. "Let stockholders profit by this plain speaking opinion of our financial leaders. Values will come into their once more when wise counsel again prevails and mad hysteria has run its course. Today's opportunity to buy into the prosperity of the Pacific coast—present and prospective—is one that is rarely afforded."

TransAmerica stock opened on the Exchange here at 30 1-8. Within a few minutes it had rallied 17 points and then at 10 o'clock was down to 38 1-2. It recovered again, reaching 42 shortly after noon. Closing quotation was 39 1-2, off 23 points from the close Monday.

Court Fails To Untangle Charges Against Kelleghan

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29—Whether Kelleghan, of Richmond, has two wives or one, and whether he is 56 or 76 years old, are the questions that must be decided by Police Judge J. M. Golden.

Today the court failed to clear up the matter of Kelleghan's legal status, and his trial on charges of neglect of a wife he claims he hasn't got, was delayed one week.

Kelleghan was arrested a week ago on charges brought by Mrs. Mary Callahan, 2735 Mission street. She claims that he was the man who married her in Los Banos in 1898 and deserted her and her two children two years later.

Kelleghan, who lives with his "other" wife in Richmond, claims that he never has seen Mrs. Callahan before.

Defense witnesses today testified that he worked in the Somersville mines through 1897 and 1898 and that he was in his early twenties then. Mrs. Callahan declared that the man she married was 45 in 1898.

TEN BILLION LOST IN NEW CRASH ON STOCK MARKET

300; Packard, 290,400; Montgomery Ward, 285,500; United Corporation, 276,300; and Standard Oil of New Jersey, 256,200.

These stocks and many others broke wide open. General Electric shot down again, as did Westinghouse and other blue chips. Their weakness uncovered stop-loss orders and further margin selling was brought out.

Bankers Powerless

The early liquidation was so extensive that even the powerful banking pool that had made a decision last night to halt the decline was powerless to interfere.

Instead of taking a hand in buying, the pool endeavored to generate a different attitude on the market among the ranks of the traders.

First of all the stock exchange gave out the information that money was easy by printing the call rate of 5 per cent on the stock exchange tickers.

Then bankers announced they were reducing margins on collateral loans to 25 per cent of Monday's prices. One brokerage hause reduced margins to 25 per cent and others were expected to follow.

Selling Too Strong

But the selling was too strong. It looked as if bankers were trying an experiment to see if they could raise prices. They withdrew and values broke.

Then in the afternoon when business leaders, economists, bankers and brokers were assuring everyone that the bottom had been touched, the list improved.

Of importance was the announcement after the close by U. S. Steel corporation of declaration of an extra dividend of $1 on common stock and reported earnings for the third quarter of $70,173,713.

Extra Dividends

Before the steel announcement, American Can directors declared an extra dividend of $1 a share and placed the stock on a $4 annual basis, compared with $3 paid previously.

The first note of real pessimism to be voiced in official Washington was sounded today by Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa. He declared it was his belief that any further decline in stocks would be likely to endanger the position of the banks. Other senators have viewed the reaction as an inevitable, but "healthy" development.

Brokers were optimistic over today's carloading report given out by the American Railway association here, which showed an increase in revenue freight of 6,502 cars above the week preceding. Declines have been reported in the two previous weekly statements, representing distribution of commodities through primary channels. The figure is an important barometer of trade.

Improvement Seen

A long period of easy money rates, accompanied by a rejuvenated bond market and a resumption of foreign financing in this country, was seen today by government fiscal experts as the probable sequel to the cataclysm in Wall street.

Much money released in the liquidation process must inevitably find its way back to the banks and into legitimate business channels, forcing interest charges to even lower levels, these authorities believe.

As opposed to working an immediate hardship upon business, it is the view here some lines will be benefited by the resulting low money charges, notably the building industry, which has long been a state of depression because of the high cost of funds.

No Reaction Feared

In years past an adverse reaction in business and an acute unemployment situation would be expected to develop within a few months after a break in values. No such reaction, however, is currently looked for by those in key government positions.

People will buy fewer automobiles, and the luxuries markets, unquestionably, will be affected, but business in its present healthy state is in a position to absorb a much severer shock, it is held here.

Low money rates will bring a revival of interest in the bond market, particularly from that portion of the public unwilling to risk further losses in stocks, financial authorities here believe. Nor will the bond issues of the immediate future incorporate the speculative features so prevalent in recent months, it is held.

Bell Co. Fails

A bearish factor was the failure of John J. Bell & Co., a curb exchange house. When this was announced on the curb tickers, it had a bad effect on both the major markets.

The break was ruthlessly carried on in other markets. Chicago stocks sold off 1 to 50 points; curb stocks shot down with a loss of 85 points in middle west utilities and cities service breaking to a new low.

Cotton futures eased off, while grains declined sharply. The bond market declined, with sales reaching the largest proportions in five years at $26,916,000.

Wide Fluctuations

The swing of the stock exchange between high and low prices and low and last quotations were wide.

Auburn Auto came back 10 points from its low to close at 130, off 60 points. A short time ago the issue was selling at 514.

General Electric rose to 245, dropped to 210 and rallied to close at 222, off 28. Eastman Kodak rallied 8 points from its low and closed at 170, off 11 1-4; Air Reduction rallied 19 3-4 to close at 120, off 25 net; Atchison rallied 13 to close at 234, off 17; Goodyear Tire rallied 7 and closed at 67, off 10; and a long list of others made substantial recoveries from lows.

Losses on the stock exchange ranged from 60 points. Midland Steel, Auburn Auto, Columbian Carbon, and Norfolk & Western were heaviest losers.

MICKEY WALKER TAKES DECISION FROM HUDKINS

CHAMP GIVEN SIX ROUNDS, 3 EVEN

WRIGLEY FIELD, Los Angeles Oct. 29.—UP— Mickey Walker, the New Jersey Toy Bull Dog, turned back Ace Hudkins in a 10-round bout here tonight in the Nebraska fighters second attempt to capture the world's middleweight title.

Walker, apparently at the peak of condition took everything the challenger had to offer and won handily.

Lieut. Jack Kennedy, veteran navy referee, gave Walker six rounds, called three even and gave Hudkins one.

Hudkins was badly beaten at the finish. His face was battered and his body red from the champion's blows.

Walker was hardly marked and it appeared he would have been able to go another ten round without difficulty.

Hudkins Tiring

Hudkins, on the other hand, was tiring rapidly and took a bad lacing in the final rounds.

Hudkins, in defeat, showed the same courage that has characterized all his fights.

He continually attempted to carry the fight to Walker who stood his ground and pegged Ace as he came in.

The champion took the three opening rounds in easy fashion. The fighters sparred around in the first round sizing each other up and then Hudkins started his boring in factics.

Walker Leads

Walker set for this maneuver, found the challenger's style to his liking and flashed rights and lefts to the body and head to take an early lead.

The second round was even more in Walker's favor than the opener. The title holder increased the speed and power of his blows and brought the crimson to Hudkins face with sharp left upper cuts and right swings.

Hudkins was jarred in the third round when Walker refused to match the challenger in close quarters and stepped away, jabbing with both hands.

Challenger Hurt

Suddenly Walker whipped a hard right to the jaw that hurt the challenger. Ace rushed in and wrestled Mickey around the ring. During the infighting, Hudkins was warned twice for blows that seemed low.

The fighters staged a fast exchange at the start of the fourth round and Hudkins got in several low swings right to the face which Walker evened by hard uppercuts and body blows.

Kennedy called the round even although some ringsiders thought it was the champion's round. Both fighters took it fairly easy during the fifth round, which was the slowest of the fight.

Walker's short stab won him the round, however.

French Facing Traffic Problem

The difficulties in traffic occasioned by the rapid increase in the number of automobiles in use is not confined to the United States, according to reports reaching the California State Automobile association. France is becoming worried over the growing dangers in traffic, and it is reported that there is an astonishing lack of road control throughout that country. The French roads are long, wide, and generally excellent, forming an inducement to high speed.

BEARS DISPLAY STRENGTH IN RESERVES

BERKELEY, Oct. 29—Football fans who have been wondering about the reserve strength of the Golden Bears of the University of California got their answer last Saturday when a fledgling team of Bear "seconds" outplayed the Olympic Club of San Francisco in most departments of the game to emerge the winner by a 21 to 19 score.

Reserve strength has been the big question mark on the Bear fortunes thus far this season, and when Coach C. M. "Nibs" Price chose to pit his second team against the clubmen, local first-guessers conceded California little chance in the game.

If Price wanted to be shown what he had, his seconds rose nobly to the occasion. In toting the ball, passing—in fact, in most departments except kicking, the debutant team showed unexpected skill.

Reserve Strong

When California treks down to Los Angeles next Saturday to meet the undefeated U. S. C. team at the Coliseum, without doubt most of the men who saw action Saturday will be there to replace varsity men if necessary. That would be the case in any event, but California followers take a certain amount of solid satisfaction in the knowledge that the reserve will be on tap if called for.

Ralston "Rusty" Gill, crashing fullback who has been knocking at the door for a varsity job all season, got his chance Saturday and made the most of the opportunity. It was Gill who ripped off 86 yards in scrimmage plays for an average gain of nearly five yards per try. It was Gill who scored the first touchdown of the game, and it was Gill who proved that his performance defensively demonstrated only half of his abilities by playing a fine defensive game.

Triangular Scrap

Gill is the third man in what has been, thus far, a triangular scrap for the fullback place. Just what will happen in the U. S. C. game is a moot question, since "Moose" Garrity, veteran, and Joe Hickingbotham, who made eastern watchers take notice of his sterling play against Pennsylvania the week before last, outrank Gill, the sophomore.

Dick Scarlett, half, was another who heard opportunity knock. Not content with tossing a pass to tie the score 13 to 13, he intercepted a pass a few minutes later to race over 40 yards for a touchdown. Scarlett has been known all season to be a better-than-average back, but his potentialities have never been fully tried out. This was true even last Saturday, despite his contributions to the scoring column, for on the few occasions when he carried the ball he accomplished little.

Extra Point Counts

Lee Rice, letterman, is evidently the Bears' best bet at the try-for point stages of the game. Rice's educated toe was unfaltering, and there have been times this season when the one small point gained in that fashion was all-important. The Pennsylvania game which ended in a 12 to 7 score is a good example of a game that might easily have been lost by failure to convert.

The California battery of big ends will be further augmented by the advent into varsity circles of Bob Bartlett, a big 19-year old sophomore who stands six feet two, and who showed commendable agility and post in opposing Paul Ford, stellar Olympic club end.

Ed Kirwan, quarter, demonstrated unusual ability in selecting plays. Kirwan is a sophomore. If he keeps his stride it seems likely that Price will take considerable pains with him in the hope of developing him for regular use after Lee Eisan graduates.

Strong Team

Surveying the material Price will have for use against U. S. C., it is evident that California will have something besides a first string. The following list names regulars and reserves, giving the regulars the first place:

Ends—Bob Norton and Russ Avery; Ellis Thornton, Bob Bartlett, Charles Shyte, Ralph Stone, Eugene Elerding.

Tackles—Dolph Timmerman and Ted Beckett; Nick Bican, Albert Cahn, Malcolm Coombs, Zur Williamson.

Centers—Captain Roy Riegels; Herman Eickmeyer, Frank Medanich.

Quarters—Lee Eisan; Ed Kirwan, Sheldon Potter, James Sheridan, Harry Bruno.

Fullbacks — Clarence Garrity, Ralston Gill, Joe Hickingbotham.

The above squad is a guess at the material "Nibs" Price will have at hand when his team goes into the fray at the Coliseum. Forty-five men are to be taken, but no squad has been announced; 44 are listed above, and if Jack DeBenedetti, end, recovers from injuries sustained in the Olympic Club game, he will probably be the forty-fifth man.

Capital Juniors Bear Crews Will Meet On Nov. 9

BERKELEY, Oct. 29.—Crews from the University of California and Sacramento Junior College will meet on the Oakland estuary in a fall regatta on Nov. 9.

The Sacramento eight will face opposition from Coach "Russ" Nagler's first freshman boat and one of the numerous varsity shells coached by Ky Ebright, maker of world's champions. The course will cover 1 1-2 miles of the estuary, ending at the Fruitvale bridge.

The meeting is an annual fall event sponsored by the two institutions in the interests of rowing in California, since the two produce the only crews in the state. California should meet real opposition from the visitors judging from interest shown in rowing at Sacramento this season. Despite the fact that crew is looked upon as a spring sport, more men turned out for rowing at the valley school than appeared for football, according to reports.

The Associated Students of the University of California have helped to establish crew as a sport at Sacramento by presenting three shells to the college for use as practice boats. Coach "Babe" Durwoodie, former California oarsman, has made rapid progress in establishing crew on the calendar at the capital city.

The feature of the race will be the struggle between the California first freshman boat and the Sacramento varsity. Coach Nagler has at present a squad of 40 oarsmen and seven coxswains working out every night. His first boat will be selected from this group.

Slide Rules To Aid Fans

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29—The echo of punts is abroad in the land, signals are being called for husky youths, on a thousand goaled turfs and the football radio fan, who gets his pigskin thrills right out of the air, is tuning in on the games.

Hampered, heretofore, by the difficulty of keeping accurate track of the movement of the ball—the downs, yardage, quarters, etc.—the radio-football devotee this season will be enabled, thanks to the newly conceived radio "slide-rule" to know at all times just where the ball lies.

This football radio "yard-stick"—similar to a slide rule, but so simple that a six-year-old could understand it—was invented for the Richfield Oil company and will be distributed free by that corporation to something like 200,000 fans.

Distribution will be through service stations on the Pacific coast and in the eastern states, it was announced here today by Richfield officials. A total of 150 000 of the rules will go to Pacific coast points alone. Anyone will be given a "yard-stick" free by merely calling at a station where Richfield products are sold, it is explained.

One side of the stick contains markings of goals and downs, together with devices for keeping track of downs and quarters. The opposite side will carry complete football schedules.

King Beats Ace

MICKEY WALKER, who took a decision over Ace Hudkins at Los Angeles last night, showed his championship calibre. Mickey took six rounds by a big margin while the Ace took one and three were even.

Seniors To Meet Assembly On Gridiron

The graduating seniors of Richmond Union high school were yesterday challenged by the assembly of the school to a football contest. The challenge, which was made in a meeting of the Student Body, was accepted. A committee will set the date and make arrangements for the game.

An announcement of a school dance to be held Nov. 8 was also made during the meeting. Gay Vargas' Red Peppers will furnish the music for the affair.

An amendment was adopted by the Student Body, giving full power to the commissioners of the organization in ordering expenditures.

Songs shown on slides were sung by the assembly, under the direction of Helen Hoefer. Vivian Vaughan accompanied on the piano.

Department Defines Subdividers Charges

A ruling has been received from Attorney General U. S. Webb stating that the $25.00 filing fee required under the 1929 real estate license act for subdividers proposing an agricultural setup will be about the only charge exacted, except where it is felt that further examination is necessary.

Exceptions will be in cases where the department must employ help outside of its regular personnel, such as soil expert, a horticulturist, or some other person whose information could be taken as expert testimony when it is felt that the information filed by the subdivider is not sufficent.

HIGH GRIDDERS ACADEMY IN TIE GAME

The grid team of Richmond Union high school yesterday fought to a 6 to 6 tie against the football squad of the San Rafael Military Academy on the San Rafael high school field. The lone touchdown for Richmond was made in the third quarter by Lane, quarterback, who crashed through from the San Rafael two yard line. The score for San Rafael was made by Otis, quarterback, who ran through a scattered field from the Richmond 10 yard line for a touchdown.

The odds were about even throughout the game. Both teams played consistant football and neither squad played in a spectacular manner. San Rafael often turned to the air route as a means of gaining yards, while Richmond usually attempted to crash through the center of the opposing line. A strong drive was made by Richmond in the last few minutes of the contest, which seriously threatened the academy's goal.

Richmond did not measure up to the standard set by the local gridders in their contest with Mt. Diablo high school of Concord last Friday. The Concordites returned home defeated with the score 13 to 9. Richmond's playing has been inconsistent this season. It started the term by losing three games in succession and tying one. For the last month, it has been alternating between defeat and victory. The Richmond gridders were disappointed by today's score. Richmond has usually been victorious during many years of rivalry with San Rafael Military Academy and they were surprised at the strength of the team which the academy coach placed the field today.

Richmond Union high school will play its last game of the football season when it meets Lodi high school Saturday at Lodi. Richmond hopes to conquer the strong Lodi gridders.

The starting lineup for Richmond high in yesterday's contest was: Drexel, Degnan, ends; W. Dunleavy, Carson, tackles; Peters, Neckle, guards. Jackson, center; Lane, quarterback; Scarcella, Masek, halfbacks and Accamazo, fullback. The substitutes for Richmond were: Freeman, Boschetti, ends; Jewell, tackle; Stoddard, quarterback and Dalton, fullback.

Game In South To Be Colorful

BERKELEY, Oct. 29.—Big crowds, big teams, big men, and big bands will all combine to lend color to the California-Southern California football game in the Coliseum at Los Angeles Saturday. The great California band, 110 strong, will travel with the team to the south to vie with the Trojan musicians.

The individual features to be presented by these bands, among the largest college musical organizations in the United States, are expected to play a colorful part in the spectacle.

Arrangements have been completed at Berkeley for taking 110 members of the band south, to lend support to the more than 5000 rooters and other thousands of enthusiastic supporters who will participate in the biennial hegira to Los Angeles for this great game.

Realtors Hit City Expenses

That the expense of local government as reflected in municipal and county tax rates and increase of land valuations upon the tax rolls is fast becoming a serious burden and menace to real estate ownership and development, and particularly to home ownership, was set forth in a resolution adopted by the California Real Estate association at its recent convention.

The resolution stated further that assessment districts for improvements are becoming a burden in many instances, which causes a forfeiture of land by owners, and urged that great caution should be exercised by public officials in authorizing improvements and assessment districts.

A copy of the endorsement is being sent to municipal, county and state officials having to do with these matters, urging that they make every effort to lower the tax rates, assessments and expenses in connection with the government.

"SAY IT WITH SONGS"

BY ARLINE de HAAS

Copyright, 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone picture starring Al Jolson; Darryl Francis Zanuck and Harvey Gates, Scenarists.

SYNOPSIS

Joe Lane, ex-pugilist and star singer at the QRSA broadcasting station, discovers that his manager, Arthur Phillips, is trying to win his wife, Katherine, away from him. He meets Phillips and in a rage strikes him down. Phillips' head hits the pavement and he is killed. Joe is sentenced to a year in prison for manslaughter. His cell-mate talks about the disgrace to a wife and children of having a convict for husband and father. Joe determines to take himself out of their lives. But when he is free he goes to the school to see his son. The little fellow starts to follow Joe and is run over by a motor car and injured so he can neither walk nor speak. Dr. Merrill, in love with Katherine, promises to operate if Joe will surrender the boy. He refuses, but lack of money drives him back to Merrill's office.

Suddenly Joe stopped, leaning against the side of a great stone arch for support. His eyes were blurred with tears. He heard nothing; saw nothing. He only knew there, there, inside of him, was something calling for help. Not for help for himself, but for his child.

"Dear God!" His lips were moving, but the sound was only a thin little thing wafted upwards and upwards on the wind. "I don't know how to begin—or how to say what I gotta say... I never tried to pray before... I guess I never lived the way I oughta, so there's no reason You should listen to me now—except this, God!... I'm not askin' You for anything for myself... It's for him—my little boy—my Little Pal—that innocent little kid that never did any harm to anybody... He's just a tiny little fellow, God, an' he don't know anything but love. ... Dear God! He's had a tough break and it wasn't his fault... It was mine!... An' You're not gonna make him suffer for what I did, are You, God?... You know I'd give my own life if that'd do any good... I'm weak and helpless, God ... but I know You could help him. Won't You do it? Please, dear God, won't You do it..."

The miracle! Her child was talking again!

The voice trailed off into silence. Joe's arms dropped limply to his sides. Then he began to blink his eyes. He looked about. He was standing on the walk across Brooklyn Bridge.

How had he got here? He must have walked down from Dr. Merrill's office. That's where he'd been. And Dr. Merrill had told him that Little Pal would never talk again. But Little Pal would talk again. Joe felt that. There was a curious lightness inside of him. Almost like a dizziness. And he was happy. He was singing. He must go back to the cafe. Funny, how he was singing!

The song plugger almost ran as he made his way down the long walk and into the crowded streets below. People jostled against him but he pushed them aside. He hailed a cab. Nothing mattered. He must go back to the cafe. Even the taxi seemed slow. But there was Moritz's Cafe, with the lights already gleaming, just ahead. He jumped out before the cab had stopped and flung a dollar bill at the driver. He raced inside.

"Sorry, Moritz," he panted, catching sight of the manager. "Important engagement. Be right down!"

He took the steps, three at a time, and hustled back into his black suit, tying his apron about his waist. Down the stairs he came again, rushing to the kitchen for his towel. His feet seemed to dance as he moved. The man who liked his singing was there again. Morris Goldstein, his name was He'd sing for this man tonight—Goldstein would ask for him.

Back and forth he went between the kitchen and the dining room, now bearing heavily laden trays of food, now taking out cluttered, dirty dishes. But nothing mattered—dirty or clean. He jumped when Goldstein beckoned to him.

"You go-ink to singk tonide?" Goldstein grinned.

"You betcha! Right away?"

"Okay by me."

And then Joe stood there, his eyes sweeping the room. People stopped eating to look at him. His voice rolled out. The cafe was stilled.

"What I couldn't be, Little Pal...
I want you to be, Little Pal...
I'm putting my faith and my hopes all in you..."

His arms were outflung. His eyes were misty. There was an exalted look on his face. Newcomers stood in the doorway, held spellbound by the very tension created in the atmosphere.

And as Joe sang in that East side cafe, Katherine all at once stopped pacing the floor and stood in front of the victrola. She couldn't stand this any longer, watching Little Pal lying in there on the bed in the next room, so silent, yet so wide awake. He never seemed to want to go to sleep—he seemed to be waiting each night for something that never came, and Katherine knew what it was.

Only a miracle could make Little Pal talk. The age of miracles had passed, so it was said. Well, this might not be a miracle, but it was worth trying, Katherine thought desperately. It couldn't do any harm. It might do some good. Quietly, so that the child might not be disturbed, she picked out a victrola record and placed it on the machine, set the needle and pushed the starter. Joe's voice, clear and sweet, came to her ears. She bent her head on her arms, resting against the tall cabinet.

"Oh, dear God!" she breathed. "Please do something! Please do something!"

And as Joe sang there in that East side cafe, his voice came from the victrola. But to Little Pal Joe was neither in the East side cafe nor in the victrola. He was there in the room, standing in the corner just behind the light. His daddy had come home to him at last. Wordlessly he reached out his short, rounded arms.

"I want you to sing and to laugh and to play..
And be good to mother while daddy's away.."

Now he was snuggling against his father's rough coat. It was so nice, just to be with his daddy again. And maybe he wouldn't go away any more. His fingers curled about the singer's coat lapel, clutching it firmly. And as the familiar voice sounded in his ears he grew happy and content. He closed his eyes. It was all right to close his eyes now, because when he opened them again his daddy would still be there.

As the sound died away the baby made a sleepy gesture, turning his head to one side on the pillow.

"Daddy," he mumbled. Then his round little mouth fell open. "Daddy!" he called. "Muvver! Muvver!"

"Junior!" Katherine was running across the floor into the next room. She caught the child up in her arms. "My baby! Junior! Say it again, darling, say it again!"

"Muvver, daddy was here!" the child began. His voice quavered slightly, but he was smiling happily. "Daddy was here and he tooked me in his arms and singed to me. He was wight here wiv me. And I can talk swell!"

"Oh, my precious darling!" Sobbing hysterically Katherine sat down on the bed, rocking the child back and forth. "It's a miracle! It is a miracle!"

Making an effort at calming herself, Katherine laid the child back on the bed and went to the telephone. She called a number, waiting for an answer.

"Hello, Johnson," she began. "Is Dr. Merrill there? This is Mrs. Lane . . . Yes. Will you ask him if he can come over to see Junior for a moment? . . . Yes . . . Yes, and please tell him Junior can talk . . . Thank you, Johnson. Good-bye."

CHAPTER XXI

Dr. Merrill rose to his feet and patted Junior's hand. "Well, the miracle has happened," he said to Katherine. "He'll be right as rain in no time now. I'm very happy." But the tight, set smile about his mouth belied his words. "Now go off to sleep, Junior, and your daddy'll see you in the morning."

"Aw wight, Uncle Wobert." The child nestled back into his pillow, his eyes closed.

"What—what did you mean?" Katherine questioned breathlessly as she followed Dr. Merrill into the living room.

"Katherine," he began finally, "I think you and Joe ought to patch matters up."

"What!" Katherine sat upright in her chair, staring.

"Oh, don't think this is easy for me to say, dear." He came over to the girl and put his hand on her shoulder. "You know the way I feel towards you. I haven't changed my mind at all since that Christmas a year ago. I love you as much as I ever did. I always will, I guess. But I can see that you don't feel about me as I do about you."

Rabbit Saved Lost Plane; Pilot Says

Editors note: Pilot Jimmy Doles of the overdue Western Air Express ship attributes his good luck and that of his comrades to a small rabbit he rescued from a snowdrift shortly after his ship made a forced landing near Trechado, N. M., Pilot Doles brought the rabbit back to Albuquerque and said he never would let it get away from him.

His story, as told to a special correspondent of the Albuquerque Tribune and the United Press follows:

By JAMES DOLES
Pilot of the Western Air Express Ship.

"We weren't lost—not a minute. But the snow storm did blow us off our course south.

"But the main thing is this rabbit.

"This little fellow was down in the snow at my feet when I first got out of the plane and I just reached down and picked him up.

"The snow was eight to ten inches deep in the field where we landed. When the storm got pretty bad, I looked around for a place big enough to land and somewhere near a house, if possible.

"It wasn't possible. So when we found a field big enough to land in, we did without the house.

"After circling the field a couple of times, I set the ship down as easily as I could.

"That was at 10:15 a. m. We stayed in the vicinity of the plane until about 8 p. m. trying to find a habitation. It got pretty cold, so we went to an abandoned house about a mile and a half away and broke in and made a fire. It wasn't so bad after that.

"Today a woman showed up. Her cooking was our biggest surprise. Her name was Bessie Mason. She was a rancher and had seen our plane circle just before we landed. When the motors were cut off, she thought we had crashed. This morning she came out to look for the 'remains.' Barrie went back with her and brought back some bacon and egg sandwiches. The food looked good to us. I can tell you.

"We found we were 45 miles from the nearest telephone.

"When the weather cleared up, we got up in the air and came along in. It seemed the best thing to do."

City Planning To Be Studied

A committee of five realtors to be appointed by the president of the California Real Estate association, will make a study of city planning and assessment conditions in California. The findings will be reported at the board of directors' meeting in January.

If found advisable, the committee may recommend the directors to provide a fund to hire engineers and statisticians to work out detail and data on city planning matters which may be used as a basis for legislation on these subjects in the 1931 legislature. The committee will cooperate with the state commission on assessment matters.

directed the adventurers to the cabin of Miss Bessie Mason, a rancher, nearby. Miss Mason cooked food for the group.

At 1 p. m. today Doles and his passengers entered the plane. The pilot set the gigantic triple motors into action, warmed them and took off cautiously. The 100 miles to Albuquerque were made slowly through fog, snow and rain.

The overdue plane ran into a light rainstorm about 9 a. m. Monday while over Arizona. As the ship swept eastward, the rain became heavier and then turned into a snowstorm that swirled in blinding flurries around the big liner.

Worst Of Season

As the ship approached the New Mexico line, the storm grew in intensity and the low rolling clouds made visibility practically nil. The storm was the worst that has hit that section of New Mexico this season. Doles had ridden through the blizzard for more than an hour before he made his landing.

Trechado is a U. S. portoffice and about 110 people live in the little village and vicinity. The altitude is 7080 feet above sea level, making nights bitterly cold.

Those aboard the plane were:

Passengers:

Dr. A. W. Ward, San Francisco.

W. E. Merz, mayor of Wakefield, N. Y.

The crew:

James E. Doles, 28, Los Angeles, chief pilot.

Allen A. Barrie, 26, Burbank, co-pilot.

R. L. Briten, Los Angeles, steward.

WIFE OPPOSES FUTURE FLIGHTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—UP—The next time Dr. A. W. Ward, prominent dentist, wishes to make a journey by air he will meet opposition from his wife, Mrs. Martha Ward said here today when she received the good news that the plane carrying her husband had landed safely after being missing for 30 hours.

"Happy? No one will ever know who happy and thankful I am" Mrs. Ward said after hearing a United Press dispatch that said the Western Air Express plane landed safely in Albuquerque.

"Every minute since they told me my husband was overdue at Albuquerque has seemed years" she continued. "I've aged 10 years in those 30 hours but I was confident all the time that first information about him would be good news.

"This wasn't his first flight but I certainly hope it is his last."

Dr. Ward's children, a 15 year old daughter and a 10 year old son ,also rejoiced. They had refused to go to school today, staying home to comfort their mother. The dentist had been scheduled to deliver an address in Fort Worth, Tex., this morning.

Eight Lost As Lake Ship Goes Down In Gale

ing waves as far as Kenosha, she sprang a leak and started to sink. Her radio sent out calls for help while her crew was put to manning the pumps. The coast guard boats and other lake steamers hurried from safe wharves to breast the storm and arrived at the scene just as the Wisconsin's deck settled under the turbulent water.

Boats Capsized

The old steamer sank with a seething swish that capsized life boats and sent members of the crew hurtling into the lake.

Coast guard cutters, also at imminent peril of sinking in the heavy seas, stood by and picked up nearly all hands. Twenty were taken to Kenosha hospitals, suffering serious injuries. Two died tonight. Check of the survivors with records of the Goodrich Transportation company, indicated that not more than six others had perished.

The turbulent lake meanwhile gave up the 10th victim of the Milwaukee which sank only a few miles further up the coast. The Milwaukee, loaded with 27 freight cars, foundered without a trace during the storm which did millions of dollars damage early last week.

29 Lives Lost

The Great Lakes, higher than they have been in years, started the ravages on their shores and upon the steamers which plow their waters late in the summer when a sand boat sank with a loss of 29 lives.

Since then the inland seas have been in a constant state of turbulence, crippling scores of large boats, sending many on sand bars and reefs, and sinking others.

Damage to shore lines has been well nigh stupendous. Breakwaters have been smashed to bits, beaches washed away, yachts in harbors sunk, and roadways ruined. Damage in Chicago alone was estimated at several million dollars.

Alberts Rents Extra Store For Christmas

Christmas shoppers at the Alberts store will have plenty of space to make their selections in toys this year, it was revealed yesterday with an announcement by C. L. Bargar, manager, that the large store room in the Odd Fellows building on Tenth street between Macdonald and Nevin avenues had been obtained for the holiday season.

According to Bargar, only toys will be on display and sold at the Tenth street store. Workers are now busy putting in the stock and preparing for the Christmas shopping season. The Tenth street toy store of Alberts will be opened Friday and will carry a complete line of toys and useful gifts for children as well as those not so young.

Due to the crowded conditions in the main store of the company for sevaral years it was decided to rent the extra store building to give the many patrons of the company an opportunity to see the large and well selected stock of toys that will be on hand to aid Santa Claus.

Dorr Displays New Nash Eight At Show Rooms

The new Nash eight arrived in Richmond yesterday and is now on display at the Roy K. Dorr agency at Eleventh street and Bissell avenue.

These are the first models of the new Nash eight that have been shown here and as a result a large number of local people visited the show rooms yesterday and last night to see the new creation.

Declared by the maker to be one of the speediest and most powerful eights on the market, the new car is a symphony in grace, color and lines.

A feature of the car is the twin ignition, which is standard in the Nash six models. The twin ignition is claimed to increase the power of the motor and to use every drop of gasoline that is sent to the cylinder.

A longer hood gives the car racy lines and the color jobs are designed to meet the approval of every driver.

There has been a large demand for the new eight, according to Nash officials at the Nash plant in Kenosha, Wis. So great has been the demand that 22 fast express loads of the new eight were dispatched to eastern cities to supply a small part of the orders taken by Nash distributors and dealers during the formal announcement rush.

Plant officials announced that every effort is being made to supply the demand of the new Nash models.
